I (Gordon) remember as a child going to see uncle Tom at the butchersstop. They also killed the animals in the abattoir, which were buildings in a courtyard at the rear of the shop, this was in Lanchester, the next village to Cornsay. I also remember all the head shields that they used to put over the animals heads which had a steel spike that fitted into the shield and was driven into the brain by a large mallet,quick and painless death.

He had an old Lanchester car which he used to let us play in round the courtyard,must have been my first taste of being involved with old cars !
